Non-Fiction
025.25 Ups	Upson, Matt, et al	Information now: a graphic guide to student research (graphic novel) Since its original publication in 2015, Information Now has helped college students address this fundamental issue in the form of a short, humorous graphic guide. It explains how information is organized, both on the open web and in library resources, and how to navigate those sources to find good, trustworthy answers. But the information landscape has changed dramatically in just a few years, and this revised edition explores new questions about who has access to information and about algorithmic bias in how search engines present results. The book also covers online misinformation and offers simple strategies for fact-checking websites. In addition to this expanded topical coverage, the new edition includes revised critical thinking exercises in every chapter to help students feel more engaged in improving the information landscape.
425.55 Bar	Baron, Dennis	What's your Pronoun?: Beyond he and she Pronouns are suddenly sparking debate, prompting new policies in schools, workplaces, even prisons, about what pronouns to use.. Far more than a byproduct of campus politics or culture wars, gender-neutral pronouns are in fact nothing new. Renowned linguist Dennis Baron puts them in historical context, demonstrating that Shakespeare used singular they; that women evoked the generic use of he to assert the right to vote (while those opposed to women's rights invoked the same word to assert that he did not include she), and that self-appointed language experts have been coining new gender pronouns, not just hir and zie but hundreds more, like thon, ip, and em, for centuries. Based on Baron's own empirical research, What's Your Pronoun? tells the untold story of gender-neutral and nonbinary pronouns.
610.14 Gyl	Gyls, Barbar A.	Medical terminology systems: a body systems approach Contents: Basic elements of a medical word -- Suffixes -- Prefixes -- Body structure -- Integumentary system -- Digestive system -- Respiratory system -- Cardiovascular system - - Blood, lymphatic, and immune systems -- Musculoskeletal system -- Urinary system -- Female reproductive system -- Male reproductive system -- Endocrine system -- Nervous system -- Special senses
610.73 All	Swearingen, Pamela L. and Jacqueline D. Wright, eds.	All-in-one nursing care plan resource: medical-surgical, pediatric, maternity, and psychiatric-mental health Features nursing care plans for all four core clinical areas. 610.73 Ell	Ellis, Peter	Understanding research for nursing students The purpose of this book is to introduce you, the nursing student, to the key concepts involved in nursing and healthcare research. The aim of introducing research is two-fold: the first is to enable you to better understand the research you read to inform your practice and to make some judgements about its quality. The second is to prepare you to undertake research either as part of your role at work or as part of a course of study. Many nurses believe that understanding research, let alone undertaking research, is beyond them. This book sets out to explode this myth by demonstrating that the processes involved in the design and undertaking of research are easily understood.
610.73 Fas	Godshall, Maryanne	Fast facts for evidence-based practice in nursing This is a concise, pocket-sized resource for students and practicing nurses alike that delivers the fundamentals of evidence-based practice (EBP) and basic nursing research concepts in an easy-to-read, quick-access format. It demystifies the research process with straightforward information. The third edition is updated to deliver the most current information on research methods, database upgrades, and new resources. The reference serves as a succinct companion for students in EBP courses and provides practicing nurses with a resource for developing EBP on their units. It equips bedside nurses with fundamental concepts and explains basic research terms and how to conduct literature searches to 'find the evidence'. The third edition continues to deliver the most practical information on EBP, including how to get the best evidence quickly, using various databases, and coverage of both quantitative and qualitative methods. At-a-glance charts categorize research and abundant examples demonstrate concepts. This classroom-tested book also provides background information on defining the 'compelling question', which is essential to finding the appropriate evidence-based material.
610.73 Gig	Giger, Joyce Newman	Transcultural nursing: assessment and intervention Transcultural Nursing: Assessment and Intervention' shows how to apply assessment and intervention strategies to individuals from a variety of different cultures. This text helps you provide culturally sensitive care with the use of six key aspects of cultural assessment: communication, time, space, social organization, environmental control, and biologic variations.
610.73 Lip	Nettina, Sandra M., ed.	Lippincott manual of nursing practice Offers a comprehensive text guiding you through the nursing concepts and skills particularly vital for medical-surgical assessment, care, and treatment.
610.73 Pri	Price, Bob	Critical thinking and writing in nursing Critical thinking and writing is central to effective nursing practice. Written specifically for nursing students, this book offers practical guidance on what it means to think critically as a nurse and how to apply this to study and practice. From critically reviewing literature for assessments to evaluating evidence to support decision-making in practice, the book provides a unique framework for developing essential critical skills.
610.7301 All	Alligood, Martha Raile	Nursing theorists and their work Find the thinking of 39 leading nursing theorists in one comprehensive text! Nursing Theorists and Their Work, 10th Edition provides a clear, in-depth look at nursing theories of historical and international significance. Each chapter presents a key nursing theory or philosophy, showing how systematic theoretical evidence can enhance decision making, professionalism, and quality of care. Lead author Martha Raile Alligood is known nationally and internationally for her expertise in nursing theory. A classic in the field of nursing theory, this text uses objective critiques, case studies, and critical thinking activities to bridge the gap between nursing theory and application.

610.73071 Inn	Bradshaw, Martha, et al., eds.	Innovative teaching strategies in nursing and related health professions Learners are accessing and organizing information much differently than they did only a few years ago. Technology has changed the way students learn and educators teach. The updated Innovative Teaching Strategies in Nursing and Related Health Professions, Eighth Edition details the trends in teaching strategies and educational technology that promote effective learning for today's students. The Eighth Edition has been updated to provide the most current information and strategies for online learning and incorporating technology across settings. Chapters on blended learning and study abroad programs help students gain a more diverse and global perspective. Highlighting innovative teaching techniques and real-world illustrations of the educational strategies, this text goes beyond theory to offer practical application principles that educators can count on. New chapter on socializing students to the health professions addresses communications and standards of behavior in real-world class and clinical settings, as well as online etiquette, and Program Evaluation provides an updated focus on how faculty can participate in the evaluation process.

A train in winter: an extraordinary story of women, friendship and resistance in occupied France

In January 1943, the Gestapo hunted down 230 women of the French Resistance and sent them to Auschwitz. This is their story, told in full for the first time--a searing and unforgettable chronicle of terror, courage, defiance, survival, and the power of friendship to transcend evil that is an essential addition to the history of World War II.
